

Extending the capability of Splunk deployments for a Leading UK Bank

Client Background

A leading UK-based financial services group, providing a wide range of banking and financial services..

Challenge

Adarma has been working with the financial organisation since 2013. We've been delivering a range of successful Splunk-related projects and services with the aim of continuously driving additional value and insight from the platform, to demonstrate the significance of their investment in Splunk.

The businesses' challenges and aims are predominantly two-fold. The first, seeking to pre-empt potential security threats and decrease overall business risk, through the creation of a robust Cyber Analytical Platform focused on Cybersecurity in the first instance. The second, deriving additional business value by harnessing intelligence gained from integrating several projects with existing business change initiatives and cyber development functions; bringing together soiled data sources; and developing business use cases into their newly-created central Splunk platform for business-wide data analytics.

The Adarma Solution

Adarma manages these projects as programmes of work which are often interconnected and share purpose. These projects are run by an end-to-end project manager that sits on the client-side, supplemented with key skilled resources from Adarma. Our development teams are currently running three Splunk migrations, responsible for ingestion and rule migration, whilst working to Client standards and interfacing business and IT subject matter experts.

In one particular example, Adarma was engaged to manage the bank's Operational Visibility project. This involved aligning people, process and technology to deliver a number of high-value dashboards and use cases to the business, that showed detailed information about branch availability, online customer transactional activity and IT and business performance on a transaction level.

The Adarma Difference

Since the Adarma story began, We have been building Europe's largest pool of qualified and experienced Splunk engineers and consultants. Adarma provides enterprises with award-winning technical knowledge and a variety of services – ranging from Splunk adoption, design and configuration through to personalisation and the building of custom rule sets.

Adarma is the current 'Splunk Partner of the Year' and one of only two organisations to have been awarded 'Elite Partner' status. In 2016, Adarma received the 'Global Revolution Award' to recognise companies that have successfully partnered with Splunk to help customers transform their organisation.

As a Splunk strategic partner, Adarma provides advisory, engineering and Security Operations Centre (SOC) managed services to a number of leading UK-based financial services and retailers. We continue to make significant investments in this partnership.

Adarma is passionate about designing, building - and in many cases operating and managing bespoke services - in partnership with its customers. We are proud to have established a strong reputation for tailored services, that can flex with the continually changing needs of our customers.

Benefits

Adarma has worked closely with the bank to deliver a robust and scalable Splunk platform, used by multiple business units. We are able to derive actionable intelligence from vast quantities of valuable data within the Splunk platform.

Some of the key benefits include:

- ▼ Delivery of a robust and scalable Splunk platform, able to derive actionable intelligence from vast quantities of valuable data.
- ▼ Improved business insight for the Bank, helping the business to increase overall customer experiences, which has in turn increased revenues.
- ▼ Enhanced threat detection and recovery capabilities, which helps the bank to continually improve their cyber security posture and build stronger relationships between IT and business teams

Contact us to discuss your Service Name requirements enquiries@adarma.com

www.adarma.com

Why ADARMA ?

As a business formed and run by former senior security leaders, Adarma are proud to sit amongst the largest independent security services companies in the UK, counting almost 30% of FTSE 100 organisations as clients.

We are multi award-winning enterprise-native consultants, we're experienced and with a proven track record of working with clients from highly regulated industries to provide tailored, fit for purpose services and being their predictive and proactive guardians.